OPEN HOUSE AT COLD CREEK

King Township's Parks, Recreation and Culture staff hosted an open house Monday night at Cold Creek Conservation Area, offering visitors the chance to try out some of the equipment there, including the climbing wall. Kieley McQuaker, 7, of Schomberg was demonstrating her climbing prowess for a number of observers, including her grandmother, Councillor Linda Pabst. ## No place safer in York than King Township

By David Anderson

King Township has been named in a survey as the safest place in York Region and possibly all of Canada.

York Regional Police Superintendent Stan Colley told Township councillors last week the crime rate in King has decreased in the last two years.

"Criminal action has decreased by 13.1 per cent in King and 6.8 per cent region wide," Colley said.

York's 2010 Accessibility Plan

Regional council approves Accessing York

York Regional council recently approved Accessing York: York Region's 2010 Accessibility Plan.

This is a plan that outlines actions that the Region will take to promote accessibility throughout York's bylaws, policies, programs, practices, services and facilities.

"This plan reaffirms our commitment to make York Region welcoming, inclusive and accessible," said Regional Chairman Bill Fisch. "Creating accessible services encourages independence, inclusion and participation of people with disabilities in all aspects of our community."

The 2010 plan features 71 accessibility planning initiatives from across all regional departments, including York Regional Police (YRP) and York Region Transit/Viva.

"We integrated accessibility planning into our business practices and processes so that our facilities and services are more inclusive of people with disabilities," said Markham Deputy Mayor

Jack Heath, chair of the community and health services committee of Regional council. "All York Region residents, including those with disabilities, benefit from barrier-free regional buildings, programs and services."

The 2010 plan was developed with advice from members of the York Region Accessibility Advisory Committee, whose term ends this fall. The committee members include people from across the Region who have different types of disabilities and backgrounds, offering a variety of perspectives.

"Our committee reviewed and advised on the initiatives in this plan," said Councillor Vito Spatafora of Richmond Hill, chair of the York Region Accessibility Advisory Committee. "Creating better access to our programs, services and facilities has been an ongoing priority throughout our four-year term. Because of this, we leave a great legacy of accessibility accomplishments at the Region."

This legacy includes advising Regional council on the implementation of four accessibility plans and more than 335 initiatives across all regional departments, including police.

Examples of these initiatives include installing signage in the York Region Administrative Centre; improving parking lots and entrances; identifying issues that people with disabilities face during an emergency; approving the development of the first accessible trail in the York Regional Forest; and implementing a system in YRP's 9-1-1 call centre to enable communication with people who are deaf, deafened or hard of hearing.

Since 2003, the Region has implemented more than 600 accessibility planning initiatives, ranging from the purchase of fully accessible buses to building fully accessible units within our housing properties and establishing partnerships with disability organizations.

A copy of Accessing York can be found at York Region's Web site at www.york.ca under services/accessibility planning. The plan is available in print or alternative formats such as large print and on CD, upon request.

Hollywood was great experience

The festival focused on films that made a statement, and was held from May 20 to 23. Magro said there were more than 90 films playing from around the world. The event was held at the Regent Showcase Theater in Hollywood.

Magro and Robertson were presented the award by festival founder Skye Kelly.

Each film was judged by its narrative and documentary style.

"The film won because of how it presented heritage," Magro said.

Robertson added people were surprised to see two Canadians there winning an award.

"I am happy about the quality and work that into it," she commented.

Magro said he was impressed with the quality of the film.

"I will continue to make films that inspire and create passion in Canada," he said.

Magro also shared his comments about Los Angeles.

"There are so many misconceptions of the place, everybody is genuine and dedicated," Magro commented.

Robertson said her experience at the film festival and in Los Angeles was amazing.

"I wouldn't have had missed it for the world," she said.

The heritage committee financed the film, which was narrated by Andrew Marshall, a former CBC host.

The documentary is unique because it's told through the eyes of Kettleby Public School's Grade 6 to 8 students, who were part of the Achievement Initiative Mentorship Program (AIM).

New member appointed to the Central LHIN Board of Directors

Ken Morrison, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Central Local Health Integration Network (LHIN), has announced the appointment of John Rogers to the Board.

Rogers's three-year appointment by the Lieutenant Governor in Council was endorsed by Deb Matthews, the Minister of Health and Long-Term Care, effective March 11.

A graduate of law from the University of Ottawa, Rogers was admitted to the bar in 1974. Since then, he has worked as a lawyer, in private practice as well as for the Town of Newmarket. He was also the Chief Administrative Officer for East Gwillimbury, and more recently Aurora.

Rogers has a long history of community involvement in York Region. In addition to many years of service in various charitable and community development roles, he has served as the Mayor of Georgina, and a member of York Region Council.

He is also Past Chair of the Board of Directors of the United Way of York Region, and recently was the co-chair of the Central LHIN Diversity and Inclusion Advisory Group.
